Northbound thru-hikers should ideally plan on reaching Canada by mid September. Washington in September can be wet and the latter in the month you hike the more cold, foggy, and rainy the weather may be. If you are still hiking after mid September be especially aware of weather forecasts, don't hike solo, let others know your hiking plans, upgrade rain gear, add warmer clothing, carry paper maps of a larger area than just the PCT (smartphones may not work in the rain and cold), carry extra food, and make good decisions. Dangerous winter snowstorms with several feet (or more) of snow historically happen shortly before October 1st about 20% of the time. Sometimes the heavy snow does not happen until mid or late October. Most hikers will end when the heavy snow arrives or alternate lower elevation routes might be an option. Ultralight thru-hiking gear is not well-suited for Washington sections of the PCT when it is covered with many feet of snow — winter mountaineering gear and skills will be needed. In the past few years several PCT thru-hikers have been stranded in Washington by snowstorms for more than a week and many others have required rescue.
